Punishing Boys With Electricity.

It is possible that an investigation will be made into the affairs of the Newark City Home, situated at Verona. The home is intended for the reformation of wayward boys and girls, and stands between the First and Second mountains and has about 300 inmates, of whom about 100 are girls. It is a city institution organized under the laws of the State, and receives boys and girls as young as seven years, and they remain there until they are twenty-one, unless in the meantime they can be given to some of the farmers in the district back of Newark. -The rules and regulations of the home are almost as strict as in a penitentiary.

It is because of one of the methods of punishment that the investigation may be set on foot. It is alleged that it has been the habit of the Superintendent, C. M. Harrison, to use electricity in punishing the boys. These extreme measures, however, have only been applied when the crime has been an aggravated one, such as attacking a boy with a knife or some similar action. The alleged method of treatment is to take the boy into a room on the ground floor and apply to the back of his neck a sponge attached to an electrode, somewhat similar to those used in Sing Sing prison. The second electrode, in place of having a sponge termination, consists of a number of fine wires in the form of a lash. When a current is turned on from a medical battery, which is used in place of a dynamo, the culprit is struck with the wire lashes, and as the wire

"It has been the custom for five years to discipline the boys who are refractory by using an electric brush on their muscles. The punishment is always administered in the presence of the house physician, Dr. Henry B. Whitehorn. It is never dangerous, and merely scares the boy. do not know who instituted it at first." Mayor Haynes of Newark, who is President of the Board of Trustees of the home, said: "It is simply an effective method of punishing boys. There is no danger and the punishment is always inflicted in the presence of a physician, and that is all there is about it."
